Write a dialogue between two best friends discussing about the behavior differences faced by the poor and wealthy people in society.

Ali: Hey Hasan, long time no see! How have you been?

Hasan: Hey Ali, I've been good. Just busy with work and all.

Ali: Oh, you're still working at that small company? I thought by now you'd have moved up to a better position.

Hasan: Yeah, well not everyone has the luxury of being born into a wealthy family like you, Ali. I have to work hard for my living.

Ali: Oh please, Hasan. Money isn't everything. I have access to all the luxuries that life has to offer, and it's all thanks to my family's wealth.

Hasan: I understand, Ali. But you see, being wealthy comes with its own set of behavior differences in society. People treat you differently when you have money, and sometimes it's not always positive.

Ali: What do you mean?

Hasan: Well, for example, people may see you as entitled or arrogant just because you come from a wealthy background. They may think you're privileged and out of touch with the struggles that regular folks face.

Ali: But that's not fair! I've worked hard in my own ways too.

Hasan: I understand, Ali. But sometimes, people's perceptions are based on stereotypes and assumptions.

Ali: I get it. It's not always easy being wealthy. People may have preconceived notions about me just because of my family's wealth.

Hasan: Yeah, that's true. But you also have to acknowledge the privileges that come with being wealthy, Ali. You have access to opportunities and resources that many others don't.

Ali: I know, Hasan. And I'm grateful for that. But sometimes, it feels like people judge me without even knowing me, just because of my family's wealth.

Hasan: Exactly. On the other hand, as someone who comes from a humble background, I have to work twice as hard to make ends meet. I can't afford to live a lavish lifestyle like you

Ali: I understand, Hasan. Money can create behavior differences in society, and it's not always easy for either the rich or the poor.

Hasan: Absolutely. Wealthy people may also struggle with the pressure to maintain a certain lifestyle and social status, which can be overwhelming.

Ali: That's true. And the poor may face discrimination and bias, with limited opportunities for growth and success.

Hasan: Yes, it's important to acknowledge that both wealth and poverty come with their own unique set of challenges and behavioral differences in society.

Ali: You're right, Hasan. It's not just about the money, but also the societal perceptions and systemic challenges that come with wealth and poverty.

Hasan: Exactly. As the saying goes, "The rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

Ali: That's a stark reality, Hasan. It's unfortunate that the poor often face systemic discrimination in various aspects of life, including employment, education, and healthcare.

Hasan: Indeed, Ali. Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere, as Martin Luther King Jr. wisely said. It's our responsibility to address and combat inequality and discrimination in all its forms, regardless of wealth or status.

Ali: That's a harsh truth, Hasan!

Hasan: Exactly and It's important for us to be aware of these differences and not judge people based on their economic status.

Ali: You're right, Hasan. I'll make sure to be more mindful of how my wealth may affect my behavior.
